march 4, 2010:

Movement, an Instrument of Cognition and the Translator of Emotion

what you can expect:

This presentation will introduce the participants to the purpose and intent of motion in humans, and it will discuss the impact of mobility in the way observers perceive emotionality and cognition. The presentation will look at the studies of facial expressions including the work of Guillaume Duchenne in 1862, and the current investigations into what happens when there are Movement Differences at work.

The goals for this presentation are:

- To learn the role of movement as a visible marker of developmental progress
- To understand the connection between mobility and cognition
- To discover the effect of emotions on facial expression
- To analyze what happens when movement conveys unclear messages

speakers:

Carola d'Emery, PhD, PT hails from Chile, the beautiful country anchored between the Pacific Ocean and the Andes mountains. She graduated from the School of Medicine at the University of Chile with a degree in Physical Therapy, and came to the United States to pursue a doctoral degree in Movement Sciences from Columbia University. Dr. d'Emery has dedicated 30 years to the practice of Pediatric Physical Therapy and 25 of those years are linked to Early Intervention. This has provided the foundation to become what she always wanted to be, an Early Interventionist. Dr. d'Emery is the Targeted Evaluation Team Clinical Educator for Sunny Days Early Childhood Developmental Services and she is a member of the N.J. State Interagency Coordinating Council (SICC) since appointed in 2003. Dr. d'Emery is a consultant for Monmouth Regional High School and she is the President of deTech, a company she created to develop products and ideas meant to support and facilitate the daily experiences of exceptional children and their families.
